OBJECTIVELow-grade gliomas (LGGs) are the most common malignant brain tumors, but the clinical characteristics, risk factors for survival, and prognostic factors have not been clarified yet. The authors aim to examine whether the risk factors for survival are the same as those for malignant glioma in general and whether LGG can be a premalignant lesion.METHODSUsing a retrospective chart review, the authors examined medical records of patients with LGG of WHO Grade II or III who were treated between January 1998 and December 2006 at the National Cancer Center Hospital East. The authors identified risk factors for death at 1, 3, and 5 years and analyzed their relation to survival.RESULTSO f the 174 patients included in the analysis, overall survival rates were 46% at 1 year, 32% at 3 years, and 22% at 5 years, according to Kaplan-Meier survival curves. The median age was 55 years, and the median KPS was 70%. Multivariate analysis revealed that patient age >60 years (hazard ratio [HR], 1.97), a KPS 60, KPS On Monday, the US Senate voted down an amendment that would have stripped the Religious Freedom Restoration Act (RFRA) from the United States' controversial First Amendment. The measure fell nine votes short, as Democrats in the Senate attempted to attach the amendment. The amendment would have blocked 79a2804d6b
